Manager Newman Claims Welter Title for Old Albuquerque Panther; Says Gibbons Is Above Limit.

Jack Torres, the Albuquerque welter who has flashed upon the welter-weight horizon a possible champion of that division, is looking for trouble in the east.

The spectacular rise of Soldier Hartlieb, who on Decoration day shaded Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul Phantom, in ten rounds, and the outbreak of Torres on the puristic map have revived interest in the welter-weight division to a greater degree than that class has known since the days of Mysterious Billy Smith, Matty Matthews, Kid McCoy and other slammers of ten or twelve years ago.

Torres was known to be good six months ago in the cactus belt but few east of the Mississippi river knew that he was alive until he met Alberts, claimant of the welterweight crown. Torres made a joke of Alberts during most of the going. He accidentally fended Alberts in the thirteenth round and on the strength of this he referred called the fight a draw.

Louis Newman, Torres' manager, claims the welterweight title for Torres on the strength of the Mexican's showing against Alberts. Newman also has in his stable Stanley Yostum, the iron-jawed, iron-nerved Chuckie, who stayed nineteen rounds with Charlie White on one occasion and fought him to a standstill in ten on another; and Benny Chavez, the sensational Mexican feather. He is planning an invasion of the east this fall with his trio, bidding for the championship in three divisions—the feather, light and welterweight.

Newman claims that Gibbons has no right to the welter crown as he has above this poundage. He declares that he is ready to match Torres with Bartfield at the welter-weight limit and is anxious to send the Mexican back against Jimmy Clabby.

Torres is wonderfully clever and a stiff puncher. The oldtimers who have seen him in action compare him with some of the best great welterweights. He is only nineteen years old and already fights with the polish of an old ring-head.

The maddened condition of the welter-weight division gives Torres about as good a right as anyone to the title and the fact that he is willing to meet anyone at his weight should gain him some favor in view of the snelling tactics of most of the present-day champions.
